Liability of Consignees. Before Judge George G. Barnard, cenberg vs. The Albany and New York Prope

ler Line.—The plaintiff in this action claimed to recover the value of goods consigned to him by Loeb Brothers, of Cairo, ili., in February, 1864, in care of A. S. Herman, of this city, consisting of looking glasses, dominoes, pencils, mathematical instruments, &c. The goods were sent by the Illinois Central and the New York Central railroads to Albany, and there delivered to the defendants, who shipped them to New York, where they arrived in March, 1864. On May 6, 1866, they were tendered to the plaintiff at Mr. Herman's store, and he refused to receive them on the ground that he had gone out of the business. The goods were cased up when shipped and tendered. The plaintiff made no examination of them, and there was no evidence of their value or condition when tendered, or of where they had been from March, 1864, until May, 1866. The plaintiff claimed upon this proof that he was entitled to recover the value of the goods as they were when they were shipped at Cairo, and that he was not bound to show that they were danaged, injured or depreciated in value. The Court held otherwise and nonsuited the plaintiff. Goepp and Stern for plaintiff; Ira Shafer and J. Shaw for defendant.

The fire being regarded as suspicious, the arrests were made and the prisoners taken before Justice Cornwell, of Brooklyn, who detained them to give the officers time to procure testimony in the case. The magistrate subsequently decided that he had no jurisdiction in the case, as the fire was not in Kings county. By advice of the District Attorney of that county, the prisoners were brought over to New York for examination. Justice Dowling, after hearing the case, felt it to be his duty to discharge the defendants, as there was no evidence produced against them.

The Wormald and O'Baldwin Fight Folled-Wormald Held to Bail in $5,000 to Answer

Judging from the events that have transpired since aturday last few will be surprised to learn that the encounter between Wormald and O'Baldwin will not take place to-day. The arrest of Wormald and have been successful for a time in preventing a meeting of the pugilistic rivals, and to all appeartilities are renewed and proper and judicious means taken to insure a combat that will be marred neither by a negligence on the one hand nor wilful causes on the other. Without entering into the many circumstances that materially contributed to hinder the fight, it cannot for a moment be doubted that had even ordinary caution been observed this event would, in all probability, have been satisfactorily decided. No matter what may be said of the arrangements, however, it is certain that the contestants undoubtedly were anxious to meet each other, not so much perhaps to contest for stake money as to settle long and deep-seated differences which are well known to have existed between them. On the force, therefore, no unjust insinuations should be made against them. The facts of the case are briefly told. On Monday morning o'Baldwin proceeded to Philadelphia; but had not been there long when he was arrested. He was, however, subsequently admitted to bail. So far "the giant" was clear enough, and awaited the arrival of his adversary. Wormald had been previously arrested and likewise admitted to bail, but it appears that his bondsman learning that he was about to leave surrendered him. On Monday evening Wormald and a few friends were proceeding over the ferryboat on their way to the Quaker City, when the former was again taken into custody, conveyed back to New York and lodged in prison. Several efforts were made to have him released, but to no effect; and it is said that Wormald expressed himself most anxious to encounter custody, conveyed back to New York and lodged in prison. Several efforts were made to have him released, but to no effect; and it is said that Wormald expressed himself most anxious to encounter O'Baldwin, if only acquitted before the time appointed for the encounter. He was however, detained till yesterday, when ex-Judge Stuart obtained a writ of habeas corpus, issued by Judge McCunn, to appear before him, it having been understood that Judge Kelly, within whose jurisdiction the case was, was not at hand. At two o'clock yesterday Wormald, with friends and counsel, duly appeared in the Superior Court, which was crowded to excess by parties seeking to become naturalized citizens. Truth to say, most of those in search of the requisite papers were honest looking mechanics, and though some persons among the throng would strongly urge their claims without the legal pretensions or without being able to answer satisfactorily, their rapid rejection and their sheepish retirement from court were worth witnessing to those in quest of humorous scenes, while the regular manner in which the business was proceeded with spoke much for the strict impartiality of the presiding Judge. After some time the writ was handed to Judge McCunn, who temporarily suspended the granting of naturalization papers, and the facts of the case were set forth. "Whether he is a prince or a prize fighter he must have a hearing," exclaimed the Judge, it having been stated that Judge Kelly was not sitting. He expressed his willingness to proceed with the hearing and dispose of the matter. Mr. Blunt appeared for the presention. After some discussion Wormald was released on bail to appear to-day, at two o'clock, to answer the charge preferred against him, Harry Hill becoming his bondsman in the sum of $5,000. The parties then left the court. This ends the proposed contest for the present. It was to have taken place this morning, and perhaps it is just as well it did not, for however willing Wormald might have been to fight he was by no means in condition

the following memorial:—

THE OLD TREASURER RE-ELECTED. Mr. Herman Cope, of Philadelphia, for many years Preasurer of the Convention, was re-elected to the same office by acclamation.

CLERICAL SUBORDINATION. Samuel Benedict, of Georgia, offered a res lution on the subject of clérical subordination to lution on the subject of clerical subordination to episcopal authority, which authority, he asserted, comes right down from Christ to the Apostles, and the rule of which in the Church is absolute. He explained his meaning to be that the Church is getting too democratic; its organization is often compared with the political institutions of our States, which he deemed wrong, as in the State all authority springs up from the people, while in the Church all authority comes down from Christ. He also referred to ritualism and maintained that no rigid and iron uniformity was necessary, but rather harmony was needed. The resolution offered was as follows:—Resolved, That the Committee on Canons be requested to the table was carried.

RITUALISM AGAIN.

Samuel Clements, of Ohio, presented another memorial on ritualism identical in phraseology with those presented some days ago by Judge Conyngham, of Pennsylvania; referred to the same Committee on Canons, when the President announced
the order of the day:—Report on a change of canon

order and continue the debate of last evening. Dr.
Rylance called attention to the fact that no seats were prepared for the Bishops, but no action was taken on the suggestion.

The Committee on New Dioceses reported a resolution concurring with the House of Bishops consenting to the division of the diocese of Western New York, which, after a pretty sharp debate on the "reluctance" existing somewhere to present the documents in the case to the House and to force action without the documents being in possession of the House, and some objection to the phraseology of the resolution and preamble, was referred back to the Committee on New Dioceses, with instructions to report fully this morning.

"COUNCIL" AND "CONVENTION."

Rev. Dr. Goodwin took the floor on the motion of changing the name of "Convention" to "Council," and entered into a historical essay how the terms "Convention" and "General Convention" came to be adopted. He referred to the endorsement of the Book of Common Prayer by the "Bishops, clergy and laily of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America in General Convention assembled," The reverend speaker then referred to to the fact that since the "Councils" at Jerusalem, which were composed of Apostles, elders and brethen, the luty were not called in to participate in the deliberations of "Councils," which were composed only of bishops. Our Church intended deliberately to reintroduce the laity as a component part of 100 Convention. To change this now work be a contraction of the hurch, now existing seventy—the years, was the and companization was recessary. It is the burch, now existing seventy—the years, was the and companization was recessary. It is the burch, now existing seventy—the years, was the and catholic Church and hence took they be considered to be the America; Much of this Reformed Catholic Church and him. The reverend doctor then made many quotations from the prayer book to the purpose of his argument. How were the results prophesed to be arrived at? He wanted to run no race with Rome on that course, adopt all she ciains all her usages, go with her side by side, have the first prophesed to be arrived at? He wanted to run no race with Rome on the house.

FOREIGN CLERGYMEN.

In the course of the proceedings in the morning a message was received from the flouse of Bishops, to the effect that they had passed an amendment to the second section of canon ten, title one, changing the word "three" to "one." The amendment will be better understood after reading the canon as it stands, as follows:

And if such foreign dergyman be a deacon he shall reside in this country at least three years and obtain in this country the requisite testimonials of character before he be ordained a prices.

the requisite testimonials of character before he be ordained a priest.

Afternoon Seasion.

"COUNCIL" On "CONVENTION."

Rev. Dr. Haight moved to take up to the order of the day. Governor Stevenson and others objected, as by a vote of the house the report of the Committee on Canons on the "Tyng canon" was postponed to resume the debate on "council" and "convention." Mr. Samuel B. Ruggies took the floor, and spoke specially to the question of adding the word "national" council, whether it would be mischlevons or whether it is necessary, whother it would exait the dignity of the Church or its efficiency in promising the word of God. The Church was founded not for these United States alone, but for the whole world, by the Saviour—one universal, one Catholic Church, in fact, one Holy Church universal, and it encircles the globe—and the prayer goes up daily that they may hold the faith in its purity. The speaker referred to the history of the gradual development of the Church from a small territory in Asia Minor till it has circumnavi gated the globe—a cosmical, world-embracing Church. What is it that is proposed? We Americans inhabit a respectable part of the globe, have all the advantages to form the central site of the universi Church, of this great religious system. Being engaged in their canonical work they deserve no sarcasm or irony. The subject should be removed from all questions of nationality or politics. We have nothing to do with the government of the country. The government is not a religious body and has no connection with the Church. The form of political government in the country has nothing to do with the Church all meet on common ground. But when our present government, in the North it is held a nation; in the South a league or confederacy. But in the Church all meet on common ground. But when our present government was formed as the United States a political entity was created which has enough of the functions and attributes of nationality to preserve its own existence and its territorial integri

in the Church; it would be tautology, for the Church in the United States includes the term nation, the use of which latter word is superfluous. The present age has done so much for the world by railroads, telegraphs and steamships that the time for the union of the cosmical Church should be accelerated. The Protestant Episcopal Church, the speaker contended, was a branch of the Christian Church, instituted by the Saviour for the whole world. If so institutes the Church was holy, and if for the whole world it was Catholic Church. The Church moves within two circles—the one cosmical, embracing the world; the other territorial, where any particular branch of the Church may be located. The Church is not the property of the government nor of the people; it is the Church of God in the United States, and great stress was inlid upon the world "in" as designating the intention of the fathers to distinguish it from a church bound to one ernment nor of the people; it is the Church of God in the United States, and great stress was laid upon the word "in" as designating the intention of the fathers to distinguish it from a church bound to one country or nation, as a church of the United States would be. Hence the nation in its political existence has nothing at all to do with the Church, and it is of no possible consequence to the church what form of government may exist in the country; whether a republic or empire, or anything between, it would not affect this Catholic, this cosmical Church. For one and for the first time the existence of a Supreme Being was recognized in the coinage of a certain piece of money by impressing upon it, "in God we trust." The speaker then referred to the Russian empire and the Russo-Greek Church, and the fact of his extended and studious personal researches and studies in that country rendered his remarks not only interesting but instructive. He spoke of the Russians as being eminently a religious people, far more so than ours, and referred to the fact that an address of the Metropolitan of Moscoow nerved the whole people to emergetic and determined resistance to France. Russia should be spoken of with profound respect by Americans. Russia said that the continued existence of the American Union in its territorial integrity was necessary to maintain the political equilibrium of the globe, while he, the speaker, Mr. Ruggles, would assert that the existence of the Church catholic in America and the world was necessary for maintaining the ecclesiastical equilibrium on the globe. The speaker remembered when the Metropolitan of Russia was invited to sit in conference with the Bishops of the Anglican Church. Mr. Ruggles then referred to the face Pan-Anglican Conference called by the Arckbishop of Canterbury, at which nincteen American Bishops attended. He would call the attention of the House to the following resolution passed by that Conference—a higher diplomatic term, for nations meet in conference and only individuals who were present:

Resolution 4. That, in the opinion of this Conference, unity of faith and discipline will be best maintained among the several branches of the Anglican Communion by due an canonical subbruitation of the synods of the severa branches to the higher authority of a synod or synods above them.

of faith and disciplies will be best maintained among the several branches of the Anglean Communion by due and canonical jaubordination of the synods of the several branches to the higher authority of a synod or synods above them.

Here was an approach to a world-wide organism of the Church is suggrested, which is intended to be superior to this Convention and at which the American branch of the Church will have to be represented as the Church in the United States, a branch of the catholic, the cosmical Church, that branch of it residing within the American nation.

Rev. Dr. George H. Norton, of Virginia, followed, replying to the technical objections of Rev. Dr. Goodwin, of Pennsylvania, charging the latter geniteman with having built a pyramid of argument on the point of a needle. The reply, like the argument which evoked it, was as technical.

Rev. Dr. Adams, of Wisconsin, offered to withdraw his amendment if the original mover of the resolution would accept the following terms:—The word "Council" to be substituted for "Convention," and the word "Triennial" or "Great Council of the United States" for "General." He said that there had been in all ages four classes of councils:—First, the General of Ecumenical, including the whole world; second, the National, taking in the nation; third, the Provincial or State; and, fourth, the Diocesan; and to call the Council of the Church of the United States at Canadia bunder—an Irish buil. (Laughter.) He hought the word "triennial" would cover the ground.

Dr. De Wolfe Howe, of Pennsylvania, asked, if the blunder just quoted was an Irish blunder, what sort of an animal would that be which would arise if the amendments of Dr. Adams were adopted (reading from the constitution)—"And the triennial conventions of the United States shall meet every thirdyear." (Great laughter.)

This refers to the resolution offered last week by Dr. Mead, of Connecticut, for a joint commission of bishops, clergy and laity, to be known as the "Commission of Church Unity." It was intended as an assertion of authority of the clergy and laity to act in conjunction with the bishops on anything to be done in the name of the Church, but the bishops decline to do 60, probably cialming that by their inherest episcopal authority they have the duty to insist in their rights. The wish of the bishops for a cosimitive of conference was, however, acceded to, as the members of this committee, to consist of piece cirical and three lay deputies, will be appointed this morning.

ANOTHER MURDER AT PERSKILL, N. V.

Flight of the Alleged Murderer

POUGHEBEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 14, 1888. Thomas Maloney, of Peekskill, died at that place causes:—Sunday afternoon, about half-past five o'clock, Thomas Maloney and Alfred Dyckman were kill known as Dogtown—a low, vile place, abounding with groggeries and a resort for disreputable characters. The subject of the conversation was in relation to a proposed fight. Maloney was so drupk as to be hardly able to stand alone. Dyckman, however was comparatively sober. The latter wished the former to fight amon where name does not former to fight some man whose name does not former to fight some man whose name does not transpire. Maloney demurred, whereupon Dyckman challenged him to fight him, and immediately struck Maloney a powerful blow under the left ear, stretching him out at full length and knocking him senseless. The brute then jumped upon his viocitim and stamped him three times, when persons nearing the scene he was dragged away from the now senseless body, remarking, as he straightened himself up, "if I kill a man I am willing to hang like a man."

As soon as it was ascertained that Maloney was

himself up. "If I kill a man I am willing to hanglike a man."

As soon as it was ascertained that Maloney was
senously injured he was conveyed to his residence, on Main street, and Dr. Snowden was sent for. On arriving he pronounced the unfortunate man to be in a dangerous condition. Maloney remained uncousecous until seven o'clock last evening, when he died. Sunday night, soon after the occurrence, Dyckman took passage on the milk train for New York, and was seen in the metropolis yesterday.
Officers Durrin and Williams, of the Peekskill police,
are on his track, and he will, no doubt, soon be apprehended. The funeral of Maloney will take place to-morrow. He is represented as having been a quiet, inoffensive person, much liked by his employers of the Peekskill Plough Works. He was about twenty-six years of age, married, and leaves a wife and one child. Coroner McEntee will hold an inquest on the body to-day, but the verdict
will probably not be rendered before to-morrow.
Dyckman, the alleged murderer, is a single man, about thirty years of age and a boatman. It was only a short time since that he emeryed from sixty days' confinement in the jail at White Plains for fighting. He is considered a hard case, and his last cruel act will probably cost him his life, Tiaere is much excitement in Peekskill over the affair, the feeling against Dyckman being of a lynch character.
In the drunken condition that Maloney was when struck he could not have defended himself against a child.

be found the victim's statement;—

About ten o'clock at night I was standing in front of my door, at 19 Mulberry street, when I saw a man and his wife fighting; I got in between them, when the man struck me over the head with a pitcher; I ran into my room, where the man followed me; I jumped into bed, when the man, whom I knew as James Harrington, keeping a store at No. 19 Mulberry street, jumped upon me kicked me, and said he would kill me; I do not remember the presence of the Coroner at 19 Mulberry street; I have heard that the said Harrington has bitten a man's nose off; I have heard of his killing a woman. Harrington, who had been arrested by Captain Jourdan, of the Sixth precinct, was committed to the Tombs by Coroner Flynn, who took the woman's statement. Harrington has a very bad record with the Sixth ward police, he having been twice convicted and sentenced to the Penitentiary for assaulting officers.
